PERHAPS THE TREATMENT OF BIPOLAR DEPRESSION ISN'T SO BLACK&WHITE

If you are struggling with the symptoms of bipolar depression and are dissatisfied with available treatment options, you may be eligible to participate in a clinical research study that is evaluating a novel investigational drug for adults with bipolar depression. This investigational drug is designed to relieve symptoms of bipolar depression in a way that is different from other currently available medications. Study participation lasts for up to 13 weeks, and includes study-related drugs, visits, and evaluations at no cost.
